Center for NYC Neighborhoods - Black Homeownership Project
Request for Proposals
Generation 2 Generation Estate Planning Program
April 2022

Date Re-Issued: April 18, 2022

In anticipation of generous support through grant funding from JPMorgan Chase, The Center for NYC Neighborhoods (“the Center”), through its Black Homeownership Project, (“ Black Homeownership Project”) is now seeking proposals from pre-qualified Network Partners and other invited nonprofit service providers (“Applicants”) to provide estate planning services to predominantly low- and moderate-income Black homeowners in neighborhoods in Central Brooklyn and/or the North Bronx with a history of being redlined by government and financial institutions.

The Center anticipates funding five (5) Applicants with a total funding pot of $630,000 from Oct 15, 2022 through October 14, 2023, although the Center reserves the right to offer grants totaling a different funding level and for a different time period.

Background

For many Black families in New York City, inheriting a home does not lead to sustained homeownership. Deed theft, predatory lending, and expensive entanglements with tax liens and other inherited debts are major obstacles to the safe transfer of homes across generations. In our research, we have found that estate planning resources are underutilized by Black homeowners for a variety of reasons including the lack of affordable services, distrust of the legal system, and a lack of education on the necessity of estate planning. Many Black homeowners only encounter estate planning when they are in crisis.

Priorities

The Black Homeownership Project's Generation 2 Generation Estate Planning Pilot Program aims to increase the awareness and importance of estate planning services for low-and moderate-income homeowners as a critical Black homeownership wealth preservation tool, and to expand the capacity of Black-led community-based organizations with deep community roots to deliver estate planning services. The Black Homeownership Project is soliciting proposals through a written response of up to two (2) pages from each Applicant.

Preference will be given to proposals from Applicants who identify as Black-led and serve predominantly Black low- and moderate-income homeowners in neighborhoods in Central Brooklyn and/or the North Bronx with a history of being redlined by government and financial institutions.

Proposals should clearly identify strategies for providing the following estate planning and/or outreach and engagement services:
